Over 100 million persecuted people, primarily prisoners of conscience, have been targeted for forced organ harvesting in China.

> Forced organ harvesting has been committed for years throughout China on a significant scale and Falun Gong practitioners have been one—and probably the main—source of organ supply. The vulnerability of the Uyghurs to being used as a bank of organs is also obvious.

What Are We Calling For?

1. Initiate measures to inform citizens and protect them from being complicit in forced organ harvesting by obtaining a transplanted organ in the PRC or by aiding and abetting forced organ harvesting through medical practice, research or training.

2. Halt any exchange in transplant-related practice, research or training with the PRC until it offers proof that forced organ harvesting of prisoners of conscience has ceased, and this should be verified by independent, unannounced inspections.

3. Initiate annual parliamentary hearings regarding the PRC's forced organ harvesting and provide annual reports that include witness and expert testimonies.

4. Begin investigations to determine accountability for any acts contrary to the provisions of the Genocide Convention committed against Falun Gong practitioners, Uyghurs and others in the PRC.

Glossary

Forced Organ Harvesting: The killing of a person through the non-consensual removal of one or more of their organs for the purpose of transplanting them into another person or other medical use.

Human Rights Watch revealed in 1994 that the Chinese Communist Party (CCP) was removing organs from executed, condemned to death prisoners and prisoners of conscience.

Since 2000, this activity has been used to exterminate Falun Gong practitioners in China and has developed into a multi-billion-dollar organs industry operated by the CCP. Evidence is building that Uyghurs are also killed for their organs. Tibetans and House Christians may also be victims.

Prisoners of Conscience in China: Persons imprisoned in China for their peaceful expression of conscientiously held beliefs which are not in line with the CCP's ideology.

The prisoners of conscience include Falun Gong practitioners, Muslims, Buddhists, House Christians, human right activists, etc.

Falun Gong Practitioners: People from all walks of life, ethnicities, and cultural backgrounds who practice Falun Gong, a meditation practice in the Buddhist tradition with an emphasis on moral improvement through adherence to truthfulness, compassion and tolerance.

Uyghurs: A Turkic-speaking ethnic group primarily in East Turkistan/Xinjiang region. The predominate religion of Uyghurs is Islam. In 2017 Uyghurs began to be incarcerated in vast numbers.

Tibetans: An ethnic group primarily in the Tibetan region. The predominate religion of Tibetans is Tibetan Buddhism.
